A. PROGRAM DESCRIPTION

The U.S. Embassy Tokyo’s Public Affairs Section of the U.S. Department of State announces an open competition for organizations to submit applications to carry out a program that aims to promote social inclusion for people with disabilities, with a particular focus on inclusive education and/or promoting job and career development opportunities for people with disabilities.

Priority Region: Japan

Program Objectives:

This year, the United States celebrates the 30th anniversary of the Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA), the landmark legislation that prohibits discrimination against individuals with disabilities in all areas of public life, including jobs, schools, transportation, and all other public and private places that are open to the general public. This law laid the foundation upon which a more inclusive society could be built. In Japan, similar legislation has been enacted, although much later, the 2013 Act for Eliminating Discrimination against Persons with Disabilities, and the revision of the Act on Employment Promotion of Persons with Disabilities will be put into effect in April 2020. Despite these legislations, employment rates for the disabled remain low exposing barriers to accessibility in the workplace and in academia. As the 2020 Tokyo Paralympic Games quickly approach, the world is looking to Japan to demonstrate its inclusion of people with disabilities. Therefore, in order to ensure the long-term inclusion of the disabled community, inclusive education and programs that will lead to better job opportunities for people with disabilities are necessary to realize social and economic equality.

The Embassy welcomes proposals that address these issues and is particularly interested in supporting the following priority areas: programs that enhance accessibility in higher education to facilitate better job opportunities; special training programs for promoting career development for people with disabilities; “train the trainer” programs to better equip those serving disabled job seekers; and programs that mitigate factors that results in low employment rate for people with disabilities. The program also needs to be designed to strengthen ties between U.S. and Japanese institutions in the areas of education and employment of people with disabilities.

Participants and Audiences:

The Embassy will only consider grants that are geared toward Japanese audiences.
